

Financial Education Resources for Teachers

April 2021

BMI FCU Scholarship Is Now Available

The BMI Federal Credit Union Jack Deibert Memorial Scholarship provides three (3) $2,000 scholarships to students in our community in pursuit of higher education. Visit bmifcu.org/scholarship for qualifications and information on how to apply.

Understanding the cost of college and options for paying can help put you on the road to success! Visit BMI FCU's Online Learning Center to learn more about budgeting and paying for higher education.

Scholarships are a gift (that do not need to be repaid) that a student can use to help pay for higher education. Studentaid.gov offers information about different kinds of scholarships, how to avoid scams, and tools to help you find available scholarships.

New Youth Webinar! Free and Open to the Public

We are excited to introduce our new webinar for teens and young adults. Banking on Your Own: Getting Started with Savings, Checking, and Credit. This webinar is part of our free community webinar series. Students will learn the steps needed to build good money skills. It starts with opening your first account and building good financial habits. We will cover everything from Savings Accounts, Checking Accounts, to why and how to build credit.

Thursday, April 22, 2021 at 6:00 PM

Students can register to attend this and other workshops on our website at bmifcu.org/calendar

Banzai!

Banzai Classroom Financial Education Program

BMI Federal Credit Union is proud to be a sponsor of the Banzai Financial Education program and to support your students' financial wellness. Many of you have already taken advantage of the Banzai Courses this school year, or in the past, and we hope that you have found it to be a great resource. We know that online learning has become essential. Banzai is an available tool that can be accessed by your students on a computer, laptop, or any mobile device. We hope you will share Banzai with your colleagues who may also be looking for an online learning tool.
